

Livestock is a form of climate justice for the Global South.

They have contributed very little to climate change yet they, and their animals, are suffering its harshest impacts.