

Joined up investments reduce health risks and burdens to people, livestock and ecosystems

Complex health problems affecting people, animals and the environment are best tackled through integrated 'one health' investments and policies that unite and apply multi-sectoral medical, veterinary and ecosystem expertise.